

based company. Cargill International is the owner of the cargo aboard a Liberian shipping vessel, the MV Monarch, which has been seized and the contents impounded by the Ukrainian government. Thirty-five thousand metric tons of sugar carried on the ship was to be delivered in Ukraine. However, the seizure of the product has raised serious questions among our colleagues regarding the risks associated with Ukrainian trade and the desirability of Ukraine as a stable, reliable trading partner.

As you know Mr. Speaker, I remain a firm advocate of enhanced trade relationships between Ukraine and the United States, and believe this House should aggressively pursue prudent policies which draw the two democracies together, and for a variety of strategic and humanitarian reasons. While the pending episode is rightfully regarded by some here as a serious impediment to the maturation of trade relations, I am hopeful it will be resolved soon. I am mindful indeed of the significance of the dispute which is why I have taken to the floor today to alert our colleagues to the actions I have taken so far in this matter.

In addition to speaking personally to Ukraine's ambassador about the need to resolve the issue of Cargill's sugar shipment, I have been in regular contact with our embassy in Kyiv, our ambassador there, multiple U.S. business representatives, and many of my contacts in the Ukrainian government and in Ukraine's parliament, the Verkhovna Rada. The nature of my conversations follow the text of the letters I conveyed to Ukraine's president, and prime minister which I hereby submit for the RECORD.

MARCH 14, 2002.

His Excellency LEONID KUCHMA,
President of Ukraine, Ukraine.

DEAR MR. KUCHMA: Your immediate attention, intervention, and response to Ukraine's confiscation of property belonging to an American-based corporation, Cargill International SA, CISA, is hereby requested. I strenuously urge you to help me resolve this extremely volatile situation which is clearly capable of damaging the relationship between our nations. As you know, I have devoted six years of my service in the U.S. Congress toward improving the Ukrainian/US relations, and I am fearful much of our recent progress will be lost to the current episode involving the seizure of cargo, legally the property of CISA, by Ukraine's Black Sea Regional Customs authority.

The ship, MV Monarch, carrying 35,000 metric tons of raw cane sugar was seized in January 2002. The stated grounds for seizure, namely the alleged inability to substantiate the existence of an American company involved in the transaction, have been resolved. However, neither the ship, nor its cargo, have been released. In fact, the latest information indicates the ship has been moved to berth at a port in Illychivesk, where off-loading has commenced, and the security of the product is in jeopardy.

The international implications of this issue are quite serious. American product being unjustly detained, confiscated and off-loaded will certainly damage Ukraine's desirability as an international market and trade partner. The sugar cargo in question is clearly the property of CISA and is being off-loaded without the owner's consent. Your intervention and leadership in resolving this situation would do much to restore and maintain Ukraine's commitment to freemarkets and reliable international relations. Thank you in advance for your urgent attention to this serious matter.

As always, I am at your disposal to engage any meaningful effort advancing our nations' friendship and cooperation.

Very truly yours,

BOB SCHAFFER,
Member of Congress,
Co-Chairman Congressional Ukrainian Caucus.

TUNISIAN INDEPENDENCE DAY

HON. BENJAMIN A. GILMAN

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, March 19, 2002

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to take this opportunity to inform my colleagues that Wednesday, March 20, 2002, marks the 46th anniversary of Tunisia's independence. I invite my colleagues to join in extending our congratulations to the leaders and people of this important ally. The Republic of Tunisia has been and continues to be a model of economic growth, while keeping Islamic fundamentalism at bay.

However, the relationship between the United States and Tunisia is much older than Tunisia's 46th Anniversary of its independence may suggest. The United States first signed a treaty of peace and friendship with Tunisia in 1797. During World War II, Tunisia's nationalist leaders suspended their struggle against France in order to support the Allied cause, and, in 1956, the United States was the first world power to recognize Tunisia's independence.

Today Tunisia and the United States enjoy friendly bilateral relations. The Tunisian government has contributed military contingents to U.N. peacekeeping missions in Cambodia, Somalia, the Western Sahara, and Rwanda. Cooperation between the Tunisian and U.S. military has been growing, with an increasing number of joint exercises.

At the same time, after years of hard work, Tunisia has produced one of the highest standards of living in the region. U.S. bilateral economic assistance programs have ended principally because of Tunisia's resounding success in social and economic development. Tunisia's prudent fiscal and debt management policies also have given Tunisia access to international capital markets. Thus, Tunisia is one of the few countries to graduate successfully from development assistance and join the developed world.

Whether protecting Mediterranean shipping lanes against Barbary pirates, opposing the Nazi war machine in North Africa, supporting Western interests during the Cold War, or serving as an island of peace and security in a sea of troubles, the United States has always been able to count on Tunisia for its support regarding the important issues of the day.

Accordingly, I invite my colleagues to join in congratulating all Tunisians as they celebrate the 46th anniversary of their nation's independence.

CELEBRATING THE 90TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE GIRL SCOUTS

HON. MICHAEL M. HONDA

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, March 19, 2002

Mr. HONDA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the Girl Scouts of the United States of America, which is celebrating its 90th anniversary this month. On March 12, 1912, Juliette Gordon Low organized the first group of eighteen Girl Scouts in Savannah, Georgia. She believed that all girls should be given the opportunity to develop physically, mentally, and spiritually. Today, there are 2.7 million girls in Girl Scouts of the USA, and over 900,000 adult members.

The Girl Scout mission is to help all girls grow strong. To that end, Girl Scouting empowers girls to develop to their full individual potential; relate positively to others; develop values that provide the foundation for sound decision-making; and contribute to the improvement of society through their abilities, leadership skills, and cooperation with others. Girl Scouts of the USA continues today to expand its programs to address contemporary issues affecting girls, while maintaining its core values. The organization's foundation is still based on the Girl Scout Promise and Law, just as it was in 1912.

Girl Scouting helps our country's young women discover the fun, friendship, and power of girls together. Through an array of enriching experiences, Girl Scouts acquire self-confidence and expertise, take on responsibility, and are encouraged to think creatively and act with integrity—qualities essential in good citizens and great leaders. At the same time, they learn a great deal about science and technology, money management and finance, health and fitness, the arts, global awareness, and much more. I personally have shared in the wonderful experience of Girl Scouting, when a number of the young women volunteered in my office last summer.

Juliette Gordon Low envisioned Girl Scouting as a profound force in the lives of all girls. In 2001, Girl Scouts of the USA launched a major initiative to continue to fulfill the foundational principle that every girl deserves the opportunity to learn the leadership and life skills that will help her achieve her goals. Through "Girl Scouting: For Every Girl, Everywhere," Girl Scout volunteers and staff are working to ensure that Girl Scouting is available to every girl in every community, reaching beyond racial, ethnic, socioeconomic or geographic boundaries. The initiative aims to encourage broader membership from minorities, especially among Latina and Asian American girls. It also seeks to increase participation of teenage girls and girls with disabilities. One of the primary missions of Girl Scouts of the USA is to make the positive experience of its programs available to girls everywhere. In addition to schools and backyards, Girl Scout troops now meet in homeless shelters, migrant farm communities, juvenile detention centers, Native American reservations, and even online via the Internet.

With "Girl Scouting: For Every Girl, Everywhere," Girl Scouts of the USA hopes to truly reflect the face of America and to ensure that every girl who wants to join Girl Scouts has the opportunity to do so. This goal is in keeping with its long and proud history of diversity
